

E-learning – Is it for you?

E-learning is online training readily available through the internet and accessed via a computer.

There is no doubt that most voluntary community organisations are currently assessing funding budgets for the future for which training may currently be low on the list of priorities however it is still important to have a well trained workforce.

Have you ever considered e-learning opportunities?

With a variety of courses available e-learning is often a quicker and cheaper method for training.

Training providers are increasingly developing more e-learn opportunities relevant to the voluntary community sector and we are interested in finding out your opinions.

We have devised a quick survey to capture your opinions around e-learning and to measure current trends in the training needs of the sector.

To take part in this survey visit: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/YLZ6297>

If you would prefer a paper version please call us on 0333 321 3021 or email: training@mcrcommunitycentral.org

If you have any specific training needs for your organisation, or indeed deliver training to the voluntary community sector please give Cheryl a ring on 0333 321 3021 or email: training@mcrcommunitycentral.org