FRESH HANDMADE COSMETICS

Projects that create long-term change are given priority. Therefore projects which prevent abuse of people, animals or the planet, are given priority over projects which care for and rehabilitate victims of abuse. Projects should aim to tackle the root cause of the problem by changing opinion and behaviour through raising awareness of issues, activism, education and campaigning.

Initiatives should reach beyond those directly involved in the project and have the potential to benefit many rather than just a few individuals. Initiatives should reach beyond those directly involved in the project and have the potential to benefit many rather than just a few individuals.

Priority will be given for the following:

- Less popular causes that aim to create long-term change and which struggle to find funding
- Campaigning over core funding
- Project costs over salaries and core costs
- Projects that find it hard to attract funding elsewhere

The Fund wants to stimulate community involvement in food production and support the development of a more positive policy position as well as encouraging organisations from across the spectrum of food interests to work more closely together to address system-wide issues. Funding priorities are as follows:

Applicants must work in an engaging, persuasive and participatory way. The funding should support the sharing of new ways of changing people’s food habits – both radical and incremental
- Working towards a more coherent food sector – funding is available for work that forges closer links between third sector organisations and food producers, distributors and consumers, or links advocates of change in the food system more closely with relevant academics and sources of evidence, or persuades mainstream food businesses, policy makers, and the public to engage with food sustainability and to seek sustainable sources of supply. Applicants must have the capacity and skills to engage policy makers at national regional and local level, and have a track record of gathering and presenting persuasive, evidence-based arguments. The funding should enable organisations from across the spectrum of food interests to work more closely together to address system-wide issues

Heritage Lottery Fund – Heritage Enterprise

Aims/priorities: The cost of repairing a neglected historic building is often so high that restoration simply isn't commercially viable. Heritage Enterprise makes such schemes possible by funding some of the repair costs. Historic buildings can attract thriving businesses and boost economic growth. And yet many lie vacant and derelict because of the high costs involved in rescuing them. Heritage Enterprise can help communities repair derelict historic places, giving them productive new uses. By funding the repair costs and making these buildings commercially viable, we hope to breathe new life into vacant sites. Not-for-profit organisations work with private partners to generate economic growth, and create jobs and opportunities in those places that need it the most. The grant programme expects projects to achieve one or more of these outcomes: outcomes for heritage, outcomes for people and outcomes for communities.

Who can apply? The Heritage Lottery Fund supports all kinds of projects, as long as they make a lasting difference for heritage, people and communities

Grant amount: Grant requests over £100,000 and under £1m (including any development funding) and Grant requests of £1m and under £5m (including any development funding).
