

COLLABORATIVE CENTRE

- ETHNIC INEQUALITIES
- SEVERE MENTAL ILLNESS
- MULTIPLE DISADVANTAGE

Do you want to be employed as a co-researcher
on a project that aims to tackle ethnic inequalities in severe mental illness?

DO YOU:

- have lived experience of severe mental distress?
- identify as African, Caribbean, South Asian or mixed heritage?
- have interest in advancing our understanding of ethnic inequalities and severe mental distress?
- want the potential to make a difference in mental health services for ethnic minority people?

If the answer is 'YES', please read on for further details...

Synergi Collaborative Centre is recruiting 4 co-researchers on a casual basis to work with academic researchers based at the University of Manchester on a qualitative research project exploring the life stories of ethnic minority people - those with severe mental distress and those who work with them.

What does the post involve?

- undertaking intensive training in research and qualitative life story interviewing & analysis leading to accreditation with the Open College Network
- conducting in-depth one-to-one life story interviews
- helping facilitate focus groups with different groups of stakeholders
- co-analysing and disseminating the findings
- regular support and supervision throughout the research process

Salary: £19.40/hour

[Travel related to the post will be paid]

Closing date: Monday 6 May 2019

For more information please contact:

✉ maria.haarmans@manchester.ac.uk

☎ 0161 306 6943