Who are we?

The Tim Parry Johnathan Ball Foundation for Peace is a charity that works nationally and internationally FOR PEACE and non-violent conflict resolution.

In 1993 the IRA exploded two bombs without warning in a shopping street in the town of Warrington. It was the day before Mothering Sunday and the streets were very busy. The bombs in bins created shrapnel that killed three-year-old Johnathan Ball and five days later 12-years-old Tim Parry lost his life. 54 others were seriously injured. The incident shocked the nation and gained worldwide publicity.

The parents of the boys set up the charity to seek to understand conflict and break the cycle of violence.
